Winter by Sandy Fleischman

I grew up and have lived in Minnesota almost my entire life. I know its winters but, like many Minnesotans, grumble about them and can't wait for spring and warmer weather. The older I get, the stronger that desire for warmth wells up inside me. I have become my mother in more ways than I can count. One of those ways is never feeling warm in the winter. I rush home and crawl under my heating blanket after a long day (pretty soon I will be wearing long thick pajamas that cover me from neck to toes with thick fluffy slippers).

When I take some time from grumbling about the weather and look out the window to the world beyond, my mind is taken with the beauty of the snow-covered world. Life rests below a protection of snow meant to keep the harsh winter cold from destroying that life. Life that is waiting for its turn to spring up and produce something for this world—beauty, food, protection.

And then I step out into that winter and there is a stillness to it that isn't felt any other time of the year. A waiting and watching for something new. When I used to snowmobile through the northern Minnesota woods, I would stop and admire the world God created. I could hear the trees moving, the crunch of snow beneath my feet, small animals scurrying around looking for food. I could almost hear the new snow falling softly on the world. During those moments, everything slowed almost to a stop. In those moments of peace, a natural worship arose from my heart. Even though the world looks frozen over, God is there in the midst of it doing something miraculous. In a few short months, the stillness of the frozen world will be replaced with new life. Shoots come up, leaves will open, flowers will bloom, and animals will wake up and start to play.

Sometimes life feels like a winter has settled in and we go through a season where things seem colder and darker. All we want to do is hide under the heating blanket until spring shows up. It may not feel like it, but God is there in that cold and dark, protecting us from the harshness of the winter winds. And if we step out, there is a quiet stillness that enables us to hear God more clearly than at other seasons of life.

Unlike our physical winters, spiritual and emotional winters can go on much longer than God ever intended. Instead of hiding under the heating blanket, curl up with the Bible and listen for what God is saying to you. When the winter moves on and spring starts to blossom, you will be amazed at what God was protecting and cultivating in you, and your heart will sing forth with joy for all that God has done.

The Gift That Keeps Giving

By Barb Schansberg

Does this list sound familiar? And if you really think about it, doesn't it sound just a wee bit crazy?! My first hint that we were once again headed into 'the season' was when I noticed Christmas decorations directly across the aisle from the close-out Halloween decorations. And thus began the journey, slowly at first but gradually picking up speed, passing Thanksgiving by, surviving Black Friday, faster and faster until we had raised our toasts and sang

Auld Lang Syne. And then what? Sadness, depression, regrets?? Perhaps, but I think most of us would agree and somehow breathe a sigh of relief "Whew! It's over!"

But, did you notice something missing from the list? Something that should be at the center of our lists? Of course! It's the Baby Jesus, our biggest undeserved gift, the one whom we worship and adore as we quietly light the candles and sing "Silent Night, Holy Night! All is calm, all is bright." And for a brief, peaceful moment all of those other things on the list become insignificant and forgotten. It's so easy to get caught up in all of our stuff, that Baby Jesus sometimes gets "lost in the crowd." So, no! It is not over! Jesus is our gift that just keeps on giving. Not just for 'the season' but forever. Jesus is our gift that will never get old, worn out, returned, exchanged, or outgrown. Jesus is our gift that will provide for us, guide us, protect us, and reassure us as we journey through the new year. Our children's program summed it up this way: "This is the journey that God calls each of us on. The journey that leads us to salvation, to redemption, to love, to Jesus. Once we get on this road, we will never be the same again."

Mittens of Hope

By Sharon Weinzierl

Last month we participated in a program called Mittens of Hope. This program offers an opportunity to bless local children and families with gifts of needed items and toys that they would not have otherwise been able to afford.

This program is coordinated through the Watertown – Mayer Elementary School. There were changes in how the program was run this year. We had been calling the program "Adopt-a-Child" but, in order to correspond with the school program, we (Ruth Clark & I) decided to call it "Mittens of Hope."

In past years, I received one list of needs/ wants for each child. This year we were given paper cut-out mittens with one item on each mitten. A child would usually have several mittens. Once the gifts were purchased and brought to the church, I delivered them to the school. The school social worker then distributed the gifts.

We have been participating in this program since Christmas 2010. The first year, Peace members shopped for 13 children & 1 family. Our biggest shopping year was 2015, 25 children & 1 family. This year, 24 single gifts were purchased for 10 kids. Thank you to everyone who donated gifts.

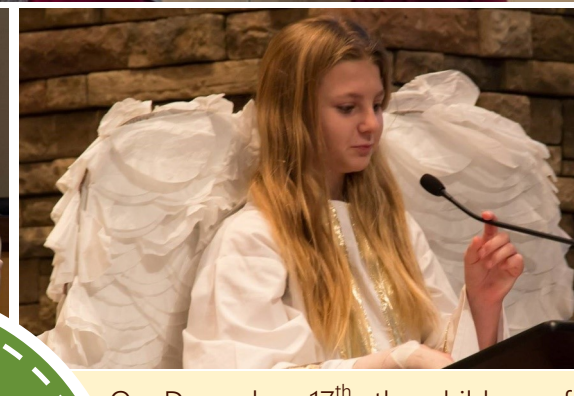

Christian Education Noisy Offering

The noisy offering mission for last fall was Hurricane Relief. The money raised will be sent to LCMC churches in the hurricane-affected areas to distribute to those in need. We raised $792.93 — Yea God!

Starting January 14th, the noisy offering mission will be a clean water initiative. Check the February newsletter for more details.

Fall Noisy Offering Hurricane Relief

On December 17th, the children of Peace presented their annual Children's Christmas Program. They did a marvelous job. The church was packed with relatives who came to see the kids sing and act out the story of Jesus' birth.

We would like to say a special thank you to the children, to the many volunteers who helped make this program such a success, and to Meghan Weaver, for organizing and directing the program.

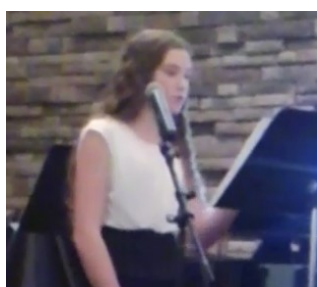

On December 20th, IGNITE Confirmation Students had a Christmas party as part of their class. They are playing the "Left, Right" game here.

On December 24th, Peace held three services. All three services offered wonderful opportunities to reflect on the importance of Christmas and all God has done for us.

At the 3:00 family worship, the children and youth of Peace participated in many areas of worship. They read the scripture, Ella May sang "Winter Snow," the Children's Choir sang "Away in a Manger," and Stephanie Hanson read the book "The Legend of the Candy Cane."

At the 4:30 service, the congregation was treated to special accompanists, including JoAnn (piano), Ruth (trumpet), Hugh Sparks (violin), and Cynthia Sparks (flute). The special music was "O Holy Night" sung by Marty Malmin and "Christmas Hymn" sung by the Adult Choir.

The 9:00 service was a more intimate worship, with 60 worshippers. Malorie Thorson did a great job with her song "Mary Did You Know?" Ruth and her daughter, Dorothea, accompanied on piano and trumpet.

We would like to thank all the volunteers—greeters, ushers, accompanists, choirs, parents, children and youth. We could not have done this so seamlessly without your help.

Hospitality Fun

December was a crazy month for Hospitality. While it was extremely busy, it was also very joyful. At the very beginning of December, we ensured that Peace was in the Christmas spirit by setting up the Christmas trees and decorating the tables.

We started the month with the Christmas Bazaar and Cookie Walk. The Women of Peace generously hosted their beautiful and delightful cookie walk, while Hospitality had over 20 local small-business vendors at their Bazaar. We are looking forward for this event to happen again next year.

December 9th brought the 2nd Annual Ladies Christmas Luncheon. Along with a wonderful speaker and stunning tables decorated by our women, the men of Peace served a delicious lunch catered by Hollywood Roadhouse. After lunch, the women were treated to a fantastic dessert hand-crafted by our own Marty Malmin. This event sold out! The day was filled with conversations, laughter, prayer and most of all a time to bond with other ladies.

Thank you to everyone who made these events so successful!
