IT'S NOT JUST ABOUT THE CORN!

*"Some seed fell into good soil, and when it grew, it produced a hundredfold."
As He said this, He called out, "Let anyone with ears to hear listen!" - Luke 8:8*

Yesterday, I was driving out towards Hutch on highway 7. I was headed to the Weirs Farm, where 500+ ears of sweet corn are growing for our "Welcome Neighbor CORN FEED."

Looking over, acre after acre, row after row of delicious Minnesota home-grown sweet corn, I thought of the farmers who planted the little corn seeds some three months earlier. It takes a great deal of faith to place a little seed in the ground and hope that it will bear much fruit. Obviously, seed-planting is essential to having a bountiful harvest.

The "Welcome Neighbor CORN FEED" has several purposes. Its primary purpose is as a community outreach event. It's a "seed-planting" event. In the parable of the sower (Luke 8), the seed is cast all over, on all types of soil. Like that parable, our invites are being "planted" in the neighborhoods of Wildflower, Forest Hills, Sugar Bush, Kings Highlands, Tuscany Village and others.

We may not always see immediate results, but we trust in faith that God will bless the seed and the sowing. The harvest comes when our neighbors know that Peace Lutheran Church is a place where God's love in Jesus is lived out and strangers and neighbors are always welcome.

In the next few weeks, we will be sharing hundreds of invitations: personal, in the mail, with yard signs and door hangers. Our expectations will be that God will bless those invitations and many will come for this community outreach event.

You are outstanding in your field or neighborhood if you will. Your invitations will fall on all types of soil. Some will not bear fruit, but others will, because God has blessed your simple invitation to come and enjoy food and entertainment on a beautiful summer evening.

Most of us don't consider ourselves an evangelist. We don't think of ourselves as being a preacher. However, every one of us can make an invitation. If you place a Yard Sign on your property, you're making an invitation to all your neighbors and everyone who drives down your street. You're casting seeds.

If you are inclined to walk for exercise. Take a packet of Door Hangers with you and walk your neighborhood sharing with others the invitation to come and enjoy.

Seeing the corn grow from these small seeds is a reminder to us that God will always be faithful and, in faith, our efforts will bear much fruit.

Beyond your invitation, we will need every member of Peace to be involved in large and small ways. Check out the volunteer opportunities online to see which one fits your interests. You can also help with items like freezing gallon jugs of ice or lending us your largest camp cooler or outdoor canopy. Finally, we need your prayers for the day, from set-up to clean-up.

We are very excited to see what God is going to do through this Welcome Neighbor Corn Feed. It's going to be a great day with great neighbors.

Pastor David

Vacation Bible School 2019

By Tracy Hulley

Every morning during the week of June 10-14, by 8:45 am, we had 62 VBS kids, twelve Youth Leaders, eight Bible Study Leaders, five Rotation Station Leaders, six Snack Providers, one Technology Pro, two Music Leaders, one Pastor, and numerous 'extras' to help where needed!

After starting with a song and our opening worship rally, the kids went to their designated Bible study areas, which were incredibly decorated! Following Bible study, all the kids again gathered in the sanctuary for music. Then the rotations began - recreation, crafts, and missions. In between rotations, the kids were given an awesome snack to keep them going! Finally, we all met back in the sanctuary for our closing worship rally.

The VBS mission this year centered around an animal rescue - Spot's Last Stop. Spot's Last Stop is a non-profit canine rescue located in the Twin Cities. SLS matches local families with homeless canines in need of forever homes by following an adoption process that is easy and fair to adopt a homeless dog in need. Our rescue is made up of a team of dedicated volunteers and fosters who support our mission to save rescue dogs with love and support. Our VBS kids and adults donated 202 items along with $600.15!

The t-shirts and music CD's were a hit, as were all the rotations and the people who made them possible, but the biggest hit was the message: "IN THE WILD!" The kids left knowing that Jesus knew why He came, that Jesus was the Son of God, that Jesus proved He was God's Son, that Jesus rose from the dead, and that all of this is written in the Bible so we can believe! What a great reminder for all of us!

Thank you to everyone who made VBS AWESOME! From those who came and helped decorate or clean up, to those who provided items or gave monetary donations. I hope each of you knows how grateful I am, and our committee is, for your help.

An extra special thanks to the VBS Committee who planned a very special week for so many - Karen and Robert Lotito, Nicole Johnsrud, Shawn and Joseph Perez, Rachel Lotito, Shelby Dressel, Rylee May, Mary Barfnecht, John and Sharon Weinzierl, Maggie Grosshuesch, Diane Malmin, Lori and Henry Harzell, Kailee Luethers, and Pastor Hanson. And an additional thank you to Sandy Fleischman for your help with everything! It simply could not have happened without all of you! Thank you.

Finally, if you'd like to see videos of the kids singing in church Sunday morning or more photos of our week, visit our Facebook page.

We welcomed these families to Peace on Sunday, June 2nd

Constructive Praise

By Dr. John Townsend

Confidence is earned, not bequeathed.

That truth is supported by a wealth of recent research about children.

Scientists are discovering that when kids get overpraised — when their parents affirm successes out of all proportion to reality — the child inevitably pays for it. Consider a few everyday examples:

"Yeah, you struck out. But the pitcher cheated!" to a kid struggling to figure out which end of the bat to hold.

"You made an A on the test! You're the smartest kid at school!" to a child who knows exactly where she stands on her class's intelligence spectrum — and it isn't at the top.

"You deserve to be the lead in the play!" to a child who is in awe of the acting ability of classmates who got the lead roles.

When kids get overpraised, they know at some level that the praise isn't based on reality. So they develop a fear of taking risks and of failing. They have not yet developed the capacity to think, I know what I'm capable of and what to do when I come to a situation beyond my capability. Instead, they overflow with anxiety and shame, and often stop trying at all.

Kids need confidence to win at life, and lots of it. But the path to genuine self-confidence is a history of success. When a child can look back at 20 track meets that went well, or a series of successful school projects, they begin to feel confident. And they should.

Confident kids don't have to talk themselves into "I can do this." They know they can because they've already done it.

Praise is an important part of parenting. But we sometimes praise our children in ways that can actually harm them. Praise that seems positive — such as praising things that take no effort, or praising tasks that are required of our child — can cause problems. When these patterns of praise become overall trends, parents risk fostering attitudes of entitlement in their children. Consider the following suggestions for using healthier praise, praise that will contribute to building resilience and confidence in your children:

Praise what takes effort. Rewards and praise are most effective when they focus on an achievement that took time and energy. Usually, when praise is most effective, that achievement would involve a child's character or internal makeup. But praise for what takes no effort can be unhealthy. To repeatedly praise a little girl for being pretty puts her in a bind. What she hears is, "What gets me loved is something I can't do much about." She also hears, "My inside isn't important, just my outside."

Consider how that little girl would feel if instead she heard, "You work really hard at school." Now what quality is receiving the praise? Her diligence, which she can do a lot about. Although looks fade over time, character will not. This girl's character will grow and blossom and become even more beautiful her entire life.

Praise the extraordinary. Praise should be reserved for those times when a child stretches himself beyond the norm, puts some extra effort or time into a task or exceeds expectations. It's not about doing the minimum, the expected. As a child grows older, he'll recognize that no one gets a party for showing up to work on time. Jesus put it this way: "So you also, when you have done all that you were commanded, say, 'We are unworthy servants; we have only done what was our duty'" (Luke 17:10).

Praise with specifics. "You're amazing!" "You're so smart!" "You're so awesome!" Our culture is awash in exaggerations that have roughly the same value as an empty calorie. Both yield insignificant benefits. I like to say that the brain has "buckets" where different information goes. Praise should always go in the correct bucket: the bucket of hard work, being kind, being honest or being vulnerable. But the brain has no appropriate bucket for nonspecific, excessive statements, and is unable to make constructive use of them.

I once praised my family this way, until I realized that this type of praise was just a shortcut. It takes little effort to speak such phrases, and I could say these things to my wife, my kids or a fence post. It didn't really matter which. It requires effort to observe and relate to a child about a particular praiseworthy behavior or attitude — maybe a specific test or project a child succeeded at, or that extra measure of effort she put into a race or difficult musical piece.

Avoid praising to create a special identity. Every child needs affirmation when he has done well in class, at a hobby or in a sport. That is why competition can be healthy. The message should be, "You are good at what you do." But when the message crosses the line to, "You are a better person than others because of what you do," or, "You deserve special treatment," trouble results.

As a parent, the right message is, "Great job on defense in the soccer game! You worked hard with your team and your individual plays were excellent. Now go and help the coach pick up the equipment." Top-tier executives, college students, managers and athletes all have to stand in line. Keep in mind that while your child may be better in ability, she is no better intrinsically. In the eyes of God, she is no better than anyone else, as the Lord is no respecter of persons (Acts 10:34).

Keep praise based on reality. One of the saddest things I see encouraging parents do is to give a child hope in an area even though no real basis exists for that hope. Buoyed by comments such as, "You can do anything you want to," a child might spend years and all of his energy in traveling down a path that is simply wrong for him. Consider the current crop of talent competition shows, such as "American Idol" and "The Voice." In the early rounds, there are always young people who have undoubtedly been overpraised and never gently told they have limited singing talent. The judges will be the first ones to give them a dose of reality — and that reality often proves to be devastating. It is much better for parents to encourage both dreams and hard work, while helping their child deal with reality. This difficult balance is a mark of great parenting.

BLESSING OF THE BACKPACKS
September 8th
During Worship

students, bring your backpacks to be blessed during J.A.M.*

Did you know that Peace Lutheran gifts quilts to high school graduating students and various veterans' homes. There is currently a small group of ladies who make these quilts and they are looking for help. Here are some ways you can help:

✂ Do you quilt or sew? Quilts are simple. If you can sew a straight line, you can make a quilt.

✂ Don't sew but want to help? Quilters could also use help with cutting material, tying the quilt, and more.

✂ Donations are also gladly accepted. Do you have material taking up space in your house? Why not donate it for these special projects. Do you like to garage sale? Be on the lookout for quilting materials.

Contact Joan Nesvold, Sharon Weinzierl or Lillie Tesch if you have questions or can help.

June/July Bible Quiz Question—What instrument did David play? Harp/lyre

When David became a young man, he began to work as King Saul's private musician. David's musical instrument was called the KINNOR, which we usually translate as a lyre or harp. It probably had 10 strings. Each string played a different note on what is called the pentatonic (5 note) scale. It made a soft, sweet sound.

"Now the Spirit of the LORD had departed from Saul, and an evil spirit from the LORD tormented him.

"Saul's attendants said to him, 'See, an evil spirit from God is tormenting you. Let our lord command his servants here to search for someone who can play the lyre. He will play when the evil spirit from God comes on you, and you will feel better.'

"So Saul said to his attendants, 'Find someone who plays well and bring him to me.'

"One of the servants answered, 'I have seen a son of Jesse of Bethlehem who knows how to play the lyre. He is a brave man and a warrior. He speaks well and is a fine-looking man. And the LORD is with him.'

"Then Saul sent messengers to Jesse and said, 'Send me your son David, who is with the sheep.' So Jesse took a donkey loaded with bread, a skin of wine and a young goat and sent them with his son David to Saul.

"David came to Saul and entered his service. Saul liked him very much, and David became one of his armor-bearers. Then Saul sent word to Jesse, saying, 'Allow David to remain in my service, for I am pleased with him.'

"Whenever the spirit from God came on Saul, David would take up his lyre and play. Then relief would come to Saul; he would feel better, and the evil spirit would leave him." (1 Samuel 16:14-23)
